

We will give thanks tomorrow that we are at peace with all the world—Including Turkey.

NO kick has been made on convention weather this year.

The Evening Herald

MEMBER ASSOCIATED PRESS

THANKS

are returned to the needs of the
for that 1915 convention.

THE EVENING CITIZEN.

VOL. 26 NO. 54.

REGISTERED

ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1914.

THE EVENING HERALD

VOL. 4, NO. 225.

TEACHERS VOTE TO HOLD THEIR 1915 CONVENTION IN ALBUQUERQUE

SANTA FE PUT UP VIGOROUS FIGHT BUT ADMITS IT USELESS TODAY

Final Session of Record Breaking Convention This Afternoon Engaged on Mass of Resolutions.

COMMITTEE SUBMITS PROHIBITION PLANK

Subject Matter Covers Everything from Woman Suffrage to Text Books and Qualifications of Teachers.

ORATORICAL CONTESTS TONIGHT END MEETING

In Work Accomplished, in Entertainment and in General Results Convention Is Voted Most Successful.

LAST NIGHT'S PROGRAM OF GREATEST INTEREST

Last night's program was the most comprehensive of the 29th convention of the educators and with every body busy from immediately after the dinner hour until an unmentionable hour this morning. In addition to the regular session program in high school auditorium, an oratorical contest between college orators raged in the Central Avenue church, a concert and a dance followed these events and there were numerous side issues, such as the annual frolic of the "Hoolies" which provided entertainment for large numbers of the teachers.

Features of last night's general session program were addresses by Miss Lulu E. Stearns of Milwaukee, who spoke on "Social Relationships in Community Life," and who was the founder of the traveling public library movement and has won national fame; and Francis E. Lester of Nichols Park whose address on "Good Boards and Their Relation to the Schools," was an inspiration to road construction in this state. Mr. Lester not only said that good roads made for good school work, but proved it in a number of ways.

In addition to the regular musical program for the session, a splendid musical concert was given at the conclusion of the session under direction of Charles J. Andrews and in which Mr. Andrews, Mr. Louis Heselton, E. Stanley Seder, Mr. L. L. Tolz, Mrs. E. Bradford and Miss Charlotte Pratt took part.

From the high school the majority of the teachers adjourned to the armory where dancing continued officially until midnight and unofficially until somewhat later.

ATTENDANCE AGAIN BREAKS THE CONVENTION RECORD

More than fifteen hundred members had registered in the New Mexico Educational Association's twenty-ninth convention yesterday evening, making the attendance at this meeting 50 per cent larger than that of a year ago, since many of the visitors are not members of the Teachers association. Predictions that last year's attendance would have been high were not realized, but that these have been wholly disproved this week. Yesterday and today predictions were worded that no such gathering as this one ever would be held here again, but it is the opinion of those best informed that in spite of attractions elsewhere in 1915, the convention is likely to prove as big a drawing card next year as it was this year. Many teachers will return and likely to be adopted late this afternoon, are a strong demand for submission of a statewide prohibition amendment, equal suffrage, 18 years as the age limit for compulsory education instead of 14 as at present, a seven months' required school term, broadening of the work and powers of the state department of education and adoption by the legislature of an educational code.

Text of a larger part of the resolutions submitted appears in this issue of the Herald.

The oratorical and declamation contests tonight end the twenty-ninth convention of the New Mexico Educational Association.

tion, admittedly the most successful in the association's history, from every standpoint.

While interest in this afternoon's session centered chiefly in the resolutions, the usual large audience was present to hear the addresses and musical program, while several of the sections held over to the afternoon to complete business.

Tonight many of the teachers are leaving for their homes, although a majority will remain for tomorrow's football game. A large number of the visitors are taking advantage of a special round trip rate to Santa Fe to make the side trip to the state capital.

With perfect weather, an entertainment program carried through without a hitch, and with more of solid, careful work in the sections than ever before, the educational heads of New Mexico have expressed themselves as highly satisfied with the results obtained from the big meeting. The new high school building, it is pointed out, has been of material advantage to the association in concentrating activity in one building and making for economy of time in almost every department of the work.

It has been Albuquerque's largest convention. More than 1,500 members of the association have registered, almost 300 more than attended a year ago.

FINAL BUSINESS SESSION UNDER WAY THIS AFTERNOON

In addition to the final business session, with the reports of committees, announcements for the coming year and discussion of resolutions, the program carried out this afternoon at the high school has been one of the best of the convention. Musical numbers were given by the Normal University orchestra, by the U. N. M. string band and glee club and by the High School Glee club from Santa Fe. The concluding lectures by President Craighead of Montana university and Mr. Coffman of Illinois, whose presence has added so much to the value of the convention, were heard with interest.

Tonight's program is confined to the contests in oratory and declamation. The high school oratorical contest will be held in the Central Avenue Methodist church and the declamation contest in the high school auditorium. Excellent music will accompany both contests and the general public will be made welcome to both at the usual admission charge for those not members of the Teachers' association.

LAST NIGHT'S PROGRAM OF GREATEST INTEREST

Last night's program was the most comprehensive of the 29th convention of the educators and with every body busy from immediately after the dinner hour until an unmentionable hour this morning. In addition to the regular session program in high school auditorium, an oratorical contest between college orators raged in the Central Avenue church, a concert and a dance followed these events and there were numerous side issues, such as the annual frolic of the "Hoolies" which provided entertainment for large numbers of the teachers.

Features of last night's general session program were addresses by Miss Lulu E. Stearns of Milwaukee, who spoke on "Social Relationships in Community Life," and who was the founder of the traveling public library movement and has won national fame; and Francis E. Lester of Nichols Park whose address on "Good Boards and Their Relation to the Schools," was an inspiration to road construction in this state. Mr. Lester not only said that good roads made for good school work, but proved it in a number of ways.

In addition to the regular musical program for the session, a splendid musical concert was given at the conclusion of the session under direction of Charles J. Andrews and in which Mr. Andrews, Mr. Louis Heselton, E. Stanley Seder, Mr. L. L. Tolz, Mrs. E. Bradford and Miss Charlotte Pratt took part.

From the high school the majority of the teachers adjourned to the armory where dancing continued officially until midnight and unofficially until somewhat later.

ATTENDANCE AGAIN BREAKS THE CONVENTION RECORD

More than fifteen hundred members had registered in the New Mexico Educational Association's twenty-ninth convention yesterday evening, making the attendance at this meeting 50 per cent larger than that of a year ago, since many of the visitors are not members of the Teachers association. Predictions that last year's attendance would have been high were not realized, but that these have been wholly disproved this week. Yesterday and today predictions were worded that no such gathering as this one ever would be held here again, but it is the opinion of those best informed that in spite of attractions elsewhere in 1915, the convention is likely to prove as big a drawing card next year as it was this year. Many teachers will

Today's War Summary

RUSSIAN ATTACKS CHECKED, BERLIN CLAIMS TODAY

Advances Made at Arras and Assaults of Czar's Forces Repulsed in East Prussia Are Events of Day.

Berlin, Nov. 22 (By Wireless to London, 2:12 p. m.)—In the official communication issued by the German general staff today, the Germans claim to have made progress at Arras, France, to have repelled all the Russian attacks in East Prussia and to have checked the Russian counter attacks in Russia.

The text of the statement follows:

"Yesterday the enemy's ships did not repeat their expedition against the coast of northern France.

"The situation in the western war theater remains unchanged. We made some slight progress at Arras.

"In East Prussia our troops repelled all the Russian attacks.

"In the counter offensive of the Russians from the direction of Löwitz, Strykow and Brzezina they failed.

"In the district of Czestochowa all the Russian attempts also broke down before our front."

Latest advices from Petrograd made no departure from previous claims of important successes, so that the situation in the east remained obscure.

Today's official communication from Paris, Berlin and London concerning the situation in Belgium and France gave partial confirmation of private reports that the Germans were beginning another great effort to smash through their way to the English channel. Both the British and French statements mention fighting along the line south of the Ypres in Belgium.

Latest advices from Petrograd made no departure from previous claims of important successes, so that the situation in the east remained obscure.

Today's official communication from Paris, Berlin and London concerning the situation in Belgium and France gave partial confirmation of private reports that the Germans were beginning another great effort to smash through their way to the English channel. Both the British and French statements mention fighting along the line south of the Ypres in Belgium.

The French war office states that some ground was gained by the allies between Langemack and Zonnebeke, small Belgian towns northeast of Ypres. To the south, in the vicinity of La Bassée, France, it is said that trenches wrested from the British were recaptured by Indian troops. Heavy fighting continues in the Argonne, the outcome of which may decide the fate of Verdun, while German attacks near Verdun are said to have been repelled.

The German official communication stated that aside from some progress made near Arras the situation in the west was unchanged.

According to advices from Paris, the Austrians have met with a defeat in their invasion of Serbia. Austrian forces in the northwestern part of the country are reported to have been repelled with heavy losses.

Hill was a lodger in the boarding house of Mrs. E. Sprules, in Mission street. When the police broke into the house, which had been collet and locked by the maid from the inside, they found Mrs. Sprules dead in a kitchen closet in which she had taken refuge and beside her the body of Hill. In another room lay James R. Hoskard, her son-in-law, who had been shot.

Mrs. Hoskard had been chased to the roof. Frederick Rust, a boarder, was pursued to the street. As soon as he could get to a telephone he called up the police. All the dead had been shot.

San Francisco Man Runs Amuck and Shoots Landlady and Her Son-in-Law. Winding Up by Killing Self

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Willard J. Hill, formerly a guard at San Quentin penitentiary, was exasperated to insane frenzy today by a trivial quarrel at the breakfast-table, and running wild, killed two persons and then committed suicide.

Hill was a lodger in the boarding house of Mrs. E. Sprules, in Mission street. When the police broke into the house, which had been collet and locked by the maid from the inside, they found Mrs. Sprules dead in a kitchen closet in which she had taken refuge and beside her the body of Hill. In another room lay James R. Hoskard, her son-in-law, who had been shot.

Mrs. Hoskard had been chased to the roof. Frederick Rust, a boarder, was pursued to the street. As soon as he could get to a telephone he called up the police. All the dead had been shot.

San Francisco Man Runs Amuck and Shoots Landlady and Her Son-in-Law. Winding Up by Killing Self

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Willard J. Hill, formerly a guard at San Quentin penitentiary, was exasperated to insane frenzy today by a trivial quarrel at the breakfast-table, and running wild, killed two persons and then committed suicide.

Hill was a lodger in the boarding house of Mrs. E. Sprules, in Mission street. When the police broke into the house, which had been collet and locked by the maid from the inside, they found Mrs. Sprules dead in a kitchen closet in which she had taken refuge and beside her the body of Hill. In another room lay James R. Hoskard, her son-in-law, who had been shot.

Mrs. Hoskard had been chased to the roof. Frederick Rust, a boarder, was pursued to the street. As soon as he could get to a telephone he called up the police. All the dead had been shot.

San Francisco Man Runs Amuck and Shoots Landlady and Her Son-in-Law. Winding Up by Killing Self

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Willard J. Hill, formerly a guard at San Quentin penitentiary, was exasperated to insane frenzy today by a trivial quarrel at the breakfast-table, and running wild, killed two persons and then committed suicide.

Hill was a lodger in the boarding house of Mrs. E. Sprules, in Mission street. When the police broke into the house, which had been collet and locked by the maid from the inside, they found Mrs. Sprules dead in a kitchen closet in which she had taken refuge and beside her the body of Hill. In another room lay James R. Hoskard, her son-in-law, who had been shot.

Mrs. Hoskard had been chased to the roof. Frederick Rust, a boarder, was pursued to the street. As soon as he could get to a telephone he called up the police. All the dead had been shot.

San Francisco Man Runs Amuck and Shoots Landlady and Her Son-in-Law. Winding Up by Killing Self

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Willard J. Hill, formerly a guard at San Quentin penitentiary, was exasperated to insane frenzy today by a trivial quarrel at the breakfast-table, and running wild, killed two persons and then committed suicide.

Hill was a lodger in the boarding house of Mrs. E. Sprules, in Mission street. When the police broke into the house, which had been collet and locked by the maid from the inside, they found Mrs. Sprules dead in a kitchen closet in which she had taken refuge and beside her the body of Hill. In another room lay James R. Hoskard, her son-in-law, who had been shot.

Mrs. Hoskard had been chased to the roof. Frederick Rust, a boarder, was pursued to the street. As soon as he could get to a telephone he called up the police. All the dead had been shot.

San Francisco Man Runs Amuck and Shoots Landlady and Her Son-in-Law. Winding Up by Killing Self

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Willard J. Hill, formerly a guard at San Quentin penitentiary, was exasperated to insane frenzy today by a trivial quarrel at the breakfast-table, and running wild, killed two persons and then committed suicide.

Hill was a lodger in the boarding house of Mrs. E. Sprules, in Mission street. When the police broke into the house, which had been collet and locked by the maid from the inside, they found Mrs. Sprules dead in a kitchen closet in which she had taken refuge and beside her the body of Hill. In another room lay James R. Hoskard, her son-in-law, who had been shot.

Mrs. Hoskard had been chased to the roof. Frederick Rust, a boarder, was pursued to the street. As soon as he could get to a telephone he called up the police. All the dead had been shot.

San Francisco Man Runs Amuck and Shoots Landlady and Her Son-in-Law. Winding Up by Killing Self

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Willard J. Hill, formerly a guard at San Quentin penitentiary, was exasperated to insane frenzy today by a trivial quarrel at the breakfast-table, and running wild, killed two persons and then committed suicide.

Hill was a lodger in the boarding house of Mrs. E. Sprules, in Mission street. When the police broke into the house, which had been collet and locked by the maid from the inside, they found Mrs. Sprules dead in a kitchen closet in which she had taken refuge and beside her the body of Hill. In another room lay James R. Hoskard, her son-in-law, who had been shot.

Mrs. Hoskard had been chased to the roof. Frederick Rust, a boarder, was pursued to the street. As soon as he could get to a telephone he called up the police. All the dead had been shot.

San Francisco Man Runs Amuck and Shoots Landlady and Her Son-in-Law. Winding Up by Killing Self

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Willard J. Hill, formerly a guard at San Quentin penitentiary, was exasperated to insane frenzy today by a trivial quarrel at the breakfast-table, and running wild, killed two persons and then committed suicide.

Hill was a lodger in the boarding house of Mrs. E. Sprules, in Mission street. When the police broke into the house, which had been collet and locked by the maid from the inside, they found Mrs. Sprules dead in a kitchen closet in which she had taken refuge and beside her the body of Hill. In another room lay James R. Hoskard, her son-in-law, who had been shot.

Mrs. Hoskard had been chased to the roof. Frederick Rust, a boarder, was pursued to the street. As soon as he could get to a telephone he called up the police. All the dead had been shot.

San Francisco Man Runs Amuck and Shoots Landlady and Her Son-in-Law. Winding Up by Killing Self

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Willard J. Hill, formerly a guard at San Quentin penitentiary, was exasperated to insane frenzy today by a trivial quarrel at the breakfast-table, and running wild, killed two persons and then committed suicide.

Hill was a lodger in the boarding house of Mrs. E. Sprules, in Mission street. When the police broke into the house, which had been collet and locked by the maid from the inside, they found Mrs. Sprules dead in a kitchen closet in which she had taken refuge and beside her the body of Hill. In another room lay James R. Hoskard, her son-in-law, who had been shot.

Mrs. Hoskard had been chased to the roof. Frederick Rust, a boarder, was pursued to the street. As soon as he could get to a telephone he called up the police. All the dead had been shot.

San Francisco Man Runs Amuck and Shoots Landlady and Her Son-in-Law. Winding Up by Killing Self

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Willard J. Hill, formerly a guard at San Quentin penitentiary, was exasperated to insane frenzy today by a trivial quarrel at the breakfast-table, and running wild, killed two persons and then committed suicide.

Hill was a lodger in the boarding house of Mrs. E. Sprules, in Mission street. When the police broke into the house, which had been collet and locked by the maid from the inside, they found Mrs. Sprules dead in a kitchen closet in which she had taken refuge and beside her the body of Hill. In another room lay James R. Hoskard, her son-in-law, who had been shot.

Mrs. Hoskard had been chased to the roof. Frederick Rust, a boarder, was pursued to the street. As soon as he could get to a telephone he called up the police. All the dead had been shot.

San Francisco Man Runs Amuck and Shoots Landlady and Her Son-in-Law. Winding Up by Killing Self

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Willard J. Hill, formerly a guard at San Quentin penitentiary, was exasperated to insane frenzy today by a trivial quarrel at the breakfast-table, and running wild, killed two persons and then committed suicide.

H